

Pilate asked "What is Truth?"

Simple, yet profound. I am sensing the motivation to write a series of articles on TRUTH. I intend to post these on my website for future reference.

Lets begin.

In the mid 80s a theologian, R.C. Sproul, met an astronomer/cosmologist, Carl Sagan. They wanted to discuss the origin of the Universe.

Carl Sagan postulated the origin as follows. 15 billion years ago all matter and energy was densely compressed in what is known as a "Point of Singularity."

Then an event occurred that caused this point of singularity to explode with a "Mightiest Explosion" of all times.

You may watch a 5 minute Narration of the "Beginning" by Carl Sagan on UTube.

R.C. Sproul asked two questions.

1. Where did the original point of singularity come from? And
2. What caused the explosion of this point of singularity?

Sagan responded to Sproul's questions as follows. "We don't need to go there."

Sproul exclaimed: "Any honest scientific inquiry demands that these questions must be explored."

The meeting ended without any potential resolution offered by Sagan to the questions raised by Sproul.

In my next article, I will cite more quotations from Carl Sagan regarding the beginning of the Universe and the beginning of life out of inanimate chemical compounds.

Please stay tuned.
